Based on the published guidance value in the year 2000 area/streets under the ARV-SAS scheme were classified into A to F Zone. The present Zonal classification under Unit Area Value is also classified as A to F Zones. However, if an area/ street that has now been classified has moved to more than one higher zone, then such change in zones shall be restricted to the value (rate) of the immediate next higher zone. For example: If an area/ street under the SAS 2000 was classified under F Zone, but in the present notification is classified in

Rs.500.00 + Cess

Rs.750.00 + Cess

D Zone, then such area/street shall be restricted to the value (rate) of E Zone and not the value (rate) of D Zone. This concession is available only for the current block period. (ii) Only if the entire flooring of house is either of cement or red oxide flooring then such houses shall fall under category II. If the house has mixed flooring i.e partly cement or red oxide flooring and partly mosaic, tile, granite, marble etc, then category I is applicable and not category II. (iii) Houses that are partly RCC and partly tiles/sheet may calculate the portions separately and apply the UAV applicable. (iv) Under special category V, the lump sum tax is applicable only for ordinary village houses and not for those houses, villa and Authority, Karnataka Housing Board or any private layout developed. For houses and apartments come up in layouts approved by Local Planning Authorities or developed by Bangalore Development Authority, Karnataka Housing Board or any private layout developed. For houses and apartments come up in such layouts, property tax shall be computed on the basis of the rate prescribed for the zone under which the property falls.

(v) For covered or stilt parking area tax may be computed at 50% of the unit area value fixed for the respective category of building, zone and status i.e. tenanted or owner occupied.

(vi) In respect of apartment/flats the owner or occupier and such other person like the Apartment Association, Society etc who administer the common facilities like manager office, club house, swimming pool, canteen, health club, gym etc. for the residents of the apartment shall file a return and pay property tax for such the built area (facility area), but excluding security cabin, pump house and electrical room, at the rates prescribed for owner occupied status for the respective zones.

(vii) Paying guest accommodation, not being service apartment/home, is classified under this Table under category I to III as the case maybe, and the rates prescribed for such use of building shall be those applicable to tenanted status of the
